Covered California for Small Business (CCSB) is a better way to offer group health coverage to small businesses with 1-100 employees. No longer are companies stuck with a one-size-fits-all approach to health benefits.

Today's employers and employees are looking for choice and a way to control costs. Employees can choose the health plan that's right for them from some of California's leading health insurance companies. The employer controls how much they pay towards health coverage by selecting a reference plan that defines their contribution. This control and flexibility means cost decisions won't affect health plan choices or continuity of care for employees.

It's time to think differently about offering group health coverage.
